Conflict of Interest

Senses employees must always act in your best interest.

Senses has responsibility to manage any conflicts of interests as they may relate to you.

A conflict of interest will arise when a Senses employee uses their professional or official capacity for a personal benefit.

A conflict of interest may affect the way a person acts, decisions they make or the way they vote on group decisions.

Senses will ensure that you will be treated equally.

No other client will be given preferential treatment above you.

Senses will ensure that its actions does not impede your right to choose and control your decisions.

Easy Read Conflict of Interest

Your Support Worker or Therapist will advise you if a conflict arises.

Senses will ensure that information about support options is transparent and promotes your choice and control.

You will not be influenced to select Senses as your provider. It is your decision.
